—Blizzard Toll At Four—

Northwest Bracing For New Storm

Cold Wave And Snow Heading Into State; Chadron Region Disaster Area

A second storm—whirling into northwest Nebraska from the Dakotas with snow and high winds—was the signal Saturday for warning messages to be dropped by plane to highway and rescue crews in the Chadron-Valentine area to abandon operations.

Blizzard Victims

The toll of dead in the blizzard-swept northwestern Nebraska area mounted to four Saturday.

They were:
Frank C. Hargreaves, 58, chemist, Mitchell.
Harmon Holleman, 44, gasoline transport driver, Gordon.
Mrs. Harriet Brown, about 100, Gordon.
Claude Hannibal, 35, Alliance.

EDWARD W. JANIKE
... Omaha Livestock Exchange secretary who becomes Nebraska 4-H club leader Feb. 15.

Janike Is New State 4-H Leader

Former N.U. Staff Member Appointed Frisbie's Successor

Edward W. Janike, 38, of Omaha, was appointed state 4-H club leader at the University of Nebraska Saturday. He succeeds the late L. I. Frisbie.

The board of regents at its Saturday morning meeting appointed Janike to fill the vacancy. The appointment is effective Feb. 15. Janike, secretary of the Omaha Livestock exchange, is a former staff member of the University of Nebraska and is well known in 4-H and livestock circles throughout the midwest. He is a native Nebraskan and was brought up on a farm north of Rising City.

Up Through Ranks.

The new 4-H club leader came up through the 4-H club ranks. He participated in 4-H club work and sheep clubs in his home community as a teen-ager. In 4-H for eight years, Janike brought beavers to the Nebraska State Fair.

A graduate of the University of Nebraska in 1930, with a major in animal husbandry, Janike was active in collegiate circles. He was a member of a national championship livestock judging team, Alpha Zeta honorary fraternity, Alpha Gamma Rho, Scabbard and Blade, Club and Bridge club and Farmers' Fair board.

In Extension Work.
During the time he was in school, Janike did 4-H club work in the summer months. He helped direct 4-H judging and demonstrations out in the state among 4-H youths.

From 1930 to 1932, Janike was assistant state animal husbandry specialist at the college of agriculture. He then went back to the farm, upon the death of his father, to take over its operations. He was called back to the university in 1933 to become district extension supervisor. In that capacity until 1939 he directed the educational work on the corn-hogs and domestic allotment programs in western Nebraska. In 1939, Janike went back to animal husbandry extension work.

In that position he helped direct the livestock extension program in Nebraska and was active in 4-H club organization work. He helped supervise the 4-H livestock and other exhibits at the state fair, As-Sar-Ben and other shows.

Popular Livestock Judge.
In June, 1945, Janike resigned and became secretary of the Omaha Livestock exchange. There he has kept in close touch with youth educational program, has spoken before many 4-H gatherings and has been a popular livestock judge at county fairs and 4-H achievement shows.

Janike is married and the father of three children.

Sees Continued Progress.
Dr. W. V. Lambert, dean of the college of agriculture, said Janike's appointment would mean that 4-H would continue to progress. He said Janike possessed ideal qualifications of leadership, character and experience and enthusiasm to carry 4-H forward at an accelerated pace.

Dr. R. G. Gustavson likewise praised Janike's appointment. He said it was in keeping with the policy of appointing the best qualified young people to fill vacancies in the university staff.

The blizzard-battered region, still counting its dead and with a new disaster area in the Chadron section, braced itself for the cold wave that was to bring sub-zero temperatures and new snow late today.

Already the death toll from the first blizzard stood at four, with a fifth body of a motorist believed to have been spotted from the air in the Chadron area.

High Winds.
The new wintry spell, which isn't expected to rival the three-day blizzard for intensity and duration, was forecast to bring below zero temperatures, 45 to 50 mile an hour winds with drifting

Travelers Cautioned

Federal forecasters, in predicting blizzard conditions for Nebraska, cautioned highway travelers to seek shelter. Below zero temperatures were forecast for most of the storm belt.

The weatherman said the snowfall was not expected to be as heavy as the recent falls, which in part of Nebraska measured as much as 40 inches. However, heavy, drifting snow was predicted for the state.

snow. The Lincoln weather bureau said the heaviest snow would be approximately two inches.

But the new blast on top of the snow blockade which is in the process of being lifted is expected to bring new hardships on thousands of ranchers, rescue crews, and people of small communities already groggy from the first blizzard.

New Deaths.

Latest to be added to the list of Nebraska storm dead were: Harmon Holleman, Gordon, found late Friday in a haystack about nine miles east of Harrison. A gasoline transport driver, Holleman had abandoned his stalled truck to seek shelter from the blizzard.

Frank C. Hargreaves, 58, Mitchell, a chemist employed by the Great Western Sugar company, died of a heart attack Friday while shoveling snow near his home.

That more deaths eventually would come to light seemed likely.

Body Beside Truck.

Airport Manager Sully Luft, Chadron, reported he spotted a transport truck from the air with a body lying beside it. Luft, unable to land his plane, said the truck was 12 miles east of Harrison on Highway 20.

CAA officials at Chadron reported at noon today that the storm front had passed over their area but that the snow located in the center of the cold front has not reached that city.

Rescue Planes Grounded.

Rescue planes were grounded and all emergency trips scheduled for the afternoon were canceled as the ceiling dropped to below 500 feet. Eight emergency cases were flown from nearby farms and communities to Chadron earlier today.

Chamber of commerce officials, who were organizing help for the stricken area, were to decide today on whether the army will be called to aid in dropping food supplies to a number of small communities still cut off by the drifts.

Chadron ranchers reported to the CAA that sheep and cattle losses were severe, and that one large herd was caught in a deep canyon northeast of there and unable to escape.

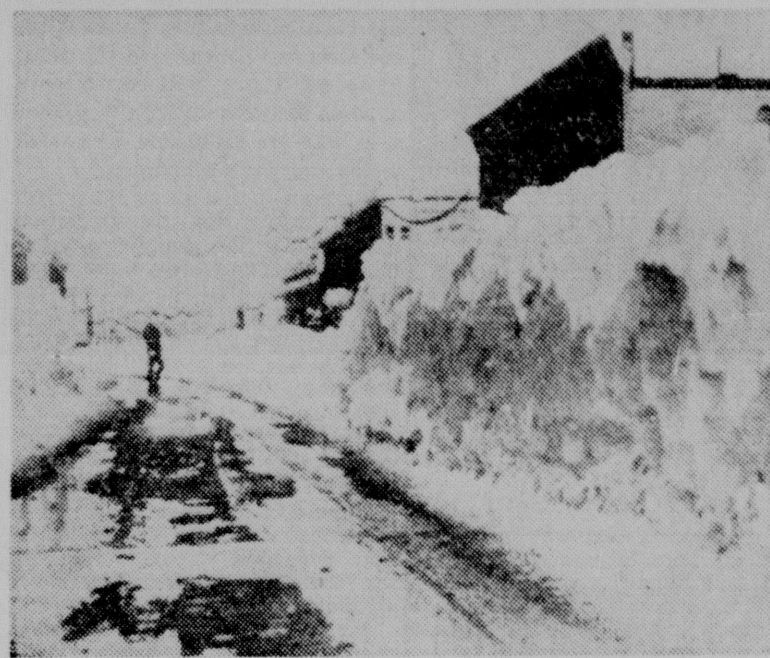

Patrol Captain C. J. Sanders, who made a flight over the blizzard-swept area, described the storm area scene as "really rugged."

The new storm was alarming news, especially for farmers and stockmen. They had hoped for good weather to round up thousands of cattle wandering aimlessly over a "great sea" of snow drifts in small bands.

Meanwhile, rescue work and efforts to get supplies to still-isolated communities in the northwest corner of the state continued Saturday. Mountain-like roadblocks had numerous highways blocked and Raymond F. Weller, chief engineer for the state highway department, estimated that it would take "two to four weeks" to completely clear highways in the panhandle area. Most farm roads were still blocked by solid drifts in Gordon, Valentine and Chadron areas.

20 Deaths.

The stricken 4-state area has counted a human death toll of 20 so far, and livestock losses that will run into millions of dollars, according to the International News Service.

BLACK HILLS DRIFTS MEASURE TEN FEET—Plows bucked ten-foot snowdrifts to open highways to single lane traffic in the wake of this week's blizzard, termed one of the worst to hit the Black Hills in 20 years. ## Probe Of Acheson Is Asked

VANDENBERG NOT OPPOSED BUT WANTS CHECK VIEWS BEFORE SENATE ENDORSEMENT

WASHINGTON—(AP)—Senator Vandenberg (R-Mich) called today for full exploration of the views of Dean Acheson, President Truman's choice for new secretary of state.

The senator, ranking republican on the foreign relations committee which will pass on Acheson's appointment, was one of the chief authors of the bipartisan foreign policy which has headed off party-line spits on international affairs.

Vandenberg said he "deeply regrets" the retirement of Secretary of State Marshall "who is one of the great Americans of all time." The Michigan senator also expressed regret that Robert A. Lovett, under secretary, also is quitting.

Connally Confident.

Vandenberg gave no indication he will actually oppose Acheson. Senator Connally (D-Tex) who succeeded the Michigan senator as foreign relations chairman, confidently forecast confirmation despite some signs of republican coolness.

Meanwhile, Sen. Wherry (R-Nebr) said he is just as much opposed to Acheson today as he was in 1945, when he fought Acheson's appointment as undersecretary of state.

The Nebraska senator emphasized that he was voicing his personal views, and had not talked with other republicans about the matter.

Catching Capitol Hill largely by surprise, President Truman Friday named Acheson as secretary and moved Webb from his post as budget director to that of undersecretary of state, after reluctantly accepting the resignations of Secretary of State Marshall and his chief aid, Robert M. Lovett.

The move was regarded in congress as possibly only the first of several changes in top personnel. Speculation involved the posts of Secretary of Defense Forrestal, Secretary of Interior Krug and Secretary of Commerce Sawyer.

Disappointment Indicated.

Acheson's confirmation was forecast on the basis of his personal acquaintance with many senators and the unwritten rule that a president can name almost anybody he chooses to his cabinet.

But there was evidence that some influential republicans—and a few democrats—were disappointed at the choice.

The reaction in congress was considered important not only because it may affect Acheson's confirmation chances, but also because one of his big jobs will be to determine how closely to work with both republican and democratic leaders in developing new foreign policy measures.

Acheson will have a leading role in appealing for more billions to finance the European recovery program for the second of the four years it is scheduled to run.

It is here that his relations with the lawmakers, many of whom have criticized him in the past, will come large.

Acheson came under heavy fire in the senate in 1945, when he was nominated, to be undersecretary of state.

Wherry Led Fight.
At that time, Senator Wherry of Nebraska, now the republican floor leader, led a fight to send the nomination back to committee on the ground that Acheson had rebuffed Gen. Douglas MacArthur about occupation policies in Japan.

The move was beaten, 66 to 12. Five of those 12, including Wherry, remain in the senate.

All but Wherry, however, finally voted for confirmation. The vote was 69 to 1.

Today's Chuckle

"Yes, I've graduated," said the daughter, "but now I must inform myself in psychology, philosophy, biology."

But her practical mother interrupted her. "I have arranged for you a thorough course in roasting, boiling, stichology, darnology, patchology, and general hustology."

No Draft Call In February, March

WASHINGTON—(AP)—The army announced Saturday that it will draft no men in February and March.

It cancelled an original call for 5,000 men in February.

Army Secretary Royall said that "voluntary enlistments and re-enlistments averaging 35,000 a month for the past two months, have made selective service calls unnecessary for the next two months."

Ogden Named New Senator By Governor

Clifford N. Ogden, Omaha, who served in the 1943 and 1945 sessions of the legislature as well as two special sessions, Saturday was appointed by Gov. Val Peterson to fill the vacancy in the 10th district caused by the resignation of Sen. Henry D. Kosman.

The governor said the reelection was made from many candidates whose names have been recommended to him.

In view of the legislative session being already started, the fact that Mr. Ogden is an experienced legislator seems particularly valuable," the governor said. "He will be able to assume an active role in the affairs of the legislature and in behalf of his district immediately."

The appointment is certain to be well received by the veteran members of the legislature, as it was known that a large number of them, both democrats and republicans who had served with him, urged his appointment on the governor.

Pressure for and against various candidates was surprising to members of the unicameral and past members. The governor admitted that he had been besieged with letters, telegrams and telephone calls.

"What is causing the sudden desire to serve in the legislature?" questioned one former member. "Usually, the difficulty is to find candidates. Many of the present senators ran without opposition."

Ogden is 47 years of age, married and has two children. He has been engaged in the insurance, finance and banking business for about 20 years after graduation from business college.

Robber Dies After A Gun Duel On Bus

INDIANAPOLIS—(AP)—Forty-one screaming bus passengers ducked to the floor Saturday while a fugitive holdup man on the bus exchanged shots with a pursuer.

The holdup man was shot to death and one other passenger was wounded slightly when struck by shot gun pellets in one leg. One woman passenger suffered a cut over the eye, believed caused by a window glass shattered by a blast.

The incident began when a man held up Oliver Barnes, grocer, and fled. Barnes said he took between $75 and $100. The grocer ran to a nearby store and told Kenneth Smiser, poultry store operator, of the holdup.

Smiser got a shotgun and the two hailed a passing motorist and started a chase after the bus. Harold Eugene Curry, the bus driver, said the car forced him into the curb. As the pursuers got out, the fugitive arose and fired out the window.

Curry said Smiser answered with a shotgun charge which went through the bus window. The Negro then jumped out of the bus and started running after again exchanging shots with Smiser.

The fugitive made his way to a nearby backyard before collapsing dead.

Two Lobbyists File

Two lobbyists for the 1949 state legislature filed with the secretary of state Saturday. They are Leslie L. Dowling, Lincoln, representing the Order of Railway Conductors state legislative committee, and Martin W. Nelson, Omaha, for the Nebraska State Council of Electrical Workers.

N. U. Ready To Match Big 7 Top Pay For Coach

Clark's Retirement As Grid Mentor Announced

University's Policy Toward Football

The following re-statement of University of Nebraska policy toward football was issued Saturday by the board of regents, Chancellor R. G. Gustavson and the board of intercollegiate athletics:

"In the past four years, the University of Nebraska twice has changed head football coaches. The University of Nebraska board of intercollegiate athletics is now seeking a third new head football coach. The new coach will be selected and on duty for the opening of spring football practice.

"These changes have brought a barrage of talk which is healthy. Nebraska wouldn't be Nebraska without Cornhusker football talk. At this time, however, we feel that Nebraskans are entitled to a re-statement of University of Nebraska policy toward football.

"1. The University believes that the young men who come to Nebraska and play football, come primarily for a sound education. The university will insist that these young men meet the conference scholastic requirements for participation in football.

"2. The University of Nebraska will not engage in what is commonly termed 'professional collegiate football'. The university is not going to the 'open market' to buy players. The University of Nebraska believes such practices are not in keeping with the best interests of higher education and feels that the overwhelming majority of Cornhusker football fans agree.

"3. The University of Nebraska, like other members of the National Collegiate Athletic association, believes that young men who play football are entitled to the assistance provided by the NCAA 'Sanity Code'. This includes:

(a) Free medical attention.
(b) Three meals per day in the pre-season training period and one free meal (evening) during the football season.

(c) Financial aid in the form of tuition scholarships on the basis of need, and granted by the same agency of the university which grants aid to all other students.

(d) Financial aid in the form of scholarships earned by football players in the field of scholarship.

(e) Financial aid in the form of part-time employment.

"4. The University of Nebraska will continue to provide the best medical care obtainable for members of the football team. It will not permit the use of injured players.

"5. The university believes Cornhusker football teams deserve good coaching. The responsibility for recommending the hiring of the coaching staff rests with the board of intercollegiate athletics. The board is authorized to pay, if necessary, coaching salaries equal to those paid by other member schools of the Big Seven conference. All coaches will receive their entire salary, as has been the case in the past, from athletic funds derived from receipts at university football games. No supplementary salaries from outside sources will be permitted. The man selected will be experienced in coaching athletics and will have a good record. The head coach will have authority to select his own assistants. The entire coaching staff should be capable teachers of football to both freshmen and varsity candidates.

"6. The University of Nebraska believes that frequent changing of coaches does not contribute to a sound football program.

"7. The University of Nebraska rejects the philosophy of football defeatism. It wants Cornhusker football teams to win games. The university is not content to be the perennial doormat of the Big Seven conference. It would much rather be the perennial champion. There is, however, no point in being unrealistic. The Big Seven conference is not what the Big Six used to be. It is tougher. The conference championship is now a hard-fought prize. This means that the championship can be expected to shift from member to member in the Big Seven, just as championships shift from member to member in the Pacific Coast, the Southwest, the Big Nine, and other conferences.

"8. The university believes that the control of athletics should reside in the institution. This is required by the Big Seven conference. University of Nebraska students and alumni are represented on the board of intercollegiate athletics.

"9. The University of Nebraska has had no intention in the past, nor has it any plans now, to scuttle Cornhusker football.

"10. The university believes that Cornhusker football is starting up the steep road to first-rate football. It earnestly solicits the good will of Nebraskans everywhere."

Late Report On Highways

Motorists traveling in the state were warned today of a new snowstorm which moved into Nebraska Saturday.

New snow, whipped by high winds, were expected to re-block many highways in western Nebraska and cover those in central and eastern Nebraska by Sunday.

The road report issued at noon today by the state highway department was as follows:

No. 34—Best east-west highway across state, open to Denver.

No. 6—Passable, open to state line, but in bad condition.

No. 30—Traffic through to Denver by using detour to Julesburg, Colo., on No. 138 and back to No. 30 on No. 27. Condition of road bad, one-way traffic.

No. 86—Open Bridgeport to Gering.

No. 18—Open from state line through Alliance to Dunlap.

No. 2—Open to Seneca. Rushville to Gordon road now open.

Huskerville Rink Is Not Frozen Yet

The Huskerville skating rink, flooded Friday night, has not frozen according to Max Swan, housing manager, Saturday.

The flooding is the first since the rink was abandoned by the army. Approximately 500 by 200 feet, the rink will also be available to residents of Lincoln, Swan said.

Park department reports listed the following Lincoln skating areas as good: Bethany, College View, Belmont and Sawyer-Snell. Oak Creek was rated as fair and Lake street, poor.

Brown Re-Appointed Commission Secretary

The state railway commission Saturday announced re-appointment of Joseph J. Brown of Lincoln as its secretary.

Hearings On Bills Start Wednesday

Unicam Ahead Of '17 Mark; 88 Measures In

State senators, taking their first week-end break, returned to their homes, where transportation was possible. The session adjourned Friday noon until 10 a. m. Monday.

Well ahead of the schedule two years ago with 88 bills introduced as compared with 64 and committee hearings starting next Wednesday three days ahead of the 1947 session, the senators sought time to clear up personal business.

Actual starting of the session also arouses their constituents to problems they want considered. The week end at home will give opportunity for such conferences.

First hearings on Wednesday will be before the government committee headed by Sen. Arthur Carmody. A series of bills on election procedures in metropolitan areas will be discussed. The bills were introduced by Sens. Charles F. Tvrdivk, William J. Norman and John Larkin, all of Omaha.

Consider Assistance Hikes.

The committee on public health on Thursday will hear the controversial proposal to increase the ceiling on old age and blind assistance from $50 to $40 a month. Estimates have been made that the change would cost the state $2,000,000 a year. It was introduced by Sens. J. V. Benesch and Carmody, as recommended by the legislative council.

Opposition has been voiced by senators, who point out that the grants are for relief on a need basis and not pensions. They call attention to the fact that a majority are not now getting maximums and that where maximums are being paid it is because of medical care which can be expected under present laws.

Sen. John Callan will have a budget committee meeting Monday to discuss plans of operation.

Aiken, Brown Due Here Next Week To Confer On Husker Job

Re-Statement Of Policy Says 'No Scuttling Of Football'; Oregon Coach Has Talked Terms With Patsy

BY NORRIS ANDERSON
(Sports Editor, The Star)

Nebraska's football destiny was outlined Saturday in a joint "re-statement of policy toward football" by the athletic board, Chancellor R. G. Gustavson and the board of regents.

Issued in connection with the search for a new Cornhusker football coach, the statement (printed in full on this page) included these pertinent announcements:

(1) That Nebraska, in its quest for a football staff, it tends to equal salaries paid by other members of the Big Seven conference.

(2) That the football coaching job is officially vacant. Patsy Clark has resigned the post to become athletic director.

(3) That the Cornhuskers will not subsidize, and that athletes will be entitled only to the assistance provided by the National Collegiate Athletic association.

The Patsy Clark resignation and the salary equalization points to a sharp increase in the amount which will be offered a new coach.

Wilkinson Offered $15,000.

Oklahoma recently offered Coach Bud Wilkinson a five-year contract at $15,000 per annum. Don Faurot's salary at Missouri is said to total $13,500.

James W. Aiken, 48-year-old coach of the Oregon Cotton Bowl team and recently contacted by Clark in San Francisco, is said to receive only $7,500 annually on a year-to-year contract.

While Aiken is definitely scheduled for a Lincoln visit next week, Paul Brown, former Ohio State tutor and now coach of the Cleveland Browns pro team, is tentatively slated to appear for an interview on the same job. Brown, who draws $25,000 yearly from the Browns and is said to be financially independent, is anxious to return to college grid wars "if the right job comes along."

Aiken and Clark conferred in San Francisco when both were attending the National Coaches association meeting. Dean Earl S. Fullbrook of the athletic board and A. Lewandowski, business manager of N. U. athletics, were also at the conference.

Clark previously had announced that he would not retire to the single position as athletic director until a football coach had been hired.

"Aiken Not Hired."

In a telephone conversation with The Star, Athletic Director George "Patsy" Clark, still in San Francisco, discounted all word that Aiken had already been hired.

"Such a report is highly premature," said the athletic director. "Jim is going to visit us next week. He is going to look us over and we are going to look him over."

Patsy added that "Aiken must sell himself to the athletic board, too, you know."

"We're just hoping Oregon university won't sign him before he looks us over."

Aiken was at his home in Eugene, Ore., when The Star telephoned him.

Expresses Deep Interest.

He expressed a deep interest in the Cornhusker position and said that he planned to phone Patsy in Lincoln Monday.

"After the phone call, I intend to leave for Lincoln, arriving possibly Wednesday or Thursday."

Aiken added that he had to be back to Eugene by Jan. 15 to attend an important high school banquet.

Had Thorough Discussion.

"I talked over mostly terms with Patsy. We didn't get down to brass tacks, but we did have a thorough discussion on the Nebraska athletic department."

Aiken had a conference with the Oregon president, Dr. Harry K. Newburn, Saturday noon.

At this meeting, he intended, he said, to tell Dr. Newburn of his interest in the Nebraska picture.

Aiken said that Oregon's policy in aiding athletes was similar to Nebraska's. The west coast school's top athletes receive scholarships, on recommendation of the athletic board, which grant half tuition.

Jobs that pay $75 monthly and require 50 hours per month working time are given Oregon athletes.

Help Those Willing To Work.

"Our boys must work for everything they get," commented the Webfoot boss. "We are willing to help if they are willing to work."

Aiken was highly recommended by Clark by Bo McMillin ex-Indiana coach and present Detroit Lion mentor, and Paul Brown, former Ohio State tutor and now coach of the Cleveland Browns.

McMillin and Aiken, who formerly played pro football together with the old Pittsburgh All-Americans, have been close friends throughout their coaching careers.

NO BIG BAD WOLF

Somehow the efforts of a big section of the American press to write President Truman down as a big, bad wolf when it comes to the system of free enterprise has flopped temporarily.

Mr. Truman delivered his long-awaited recommendations to congress at noon Wednesday. Senator Bob Taft, speaking for senate republicans did not like them. Georgia's Gene Cox, speaking for dyed-in-the-wool reactionary southern democrats, cared even less for them. "Socialism," he screamed in a voice filled with emotion. But when it came to dislike for what the president said, or criticism of his recommendations, Taft, Cox, et al., were party-waists alongside a substantial slice of the American press, and the commentators. The press and the columnists really went to town. So did the New York stock market, not that it is infallible in its interpretation of American public opinion, any more infallible than Dr. Gallup or Elmo Roper. But here is what stocks on the New York security exchange did after the "big bad wolf" had had his say:

Wednesday—Within 30 minutes after the president had finished speaking, a mild rally.

Thursday—The broadest upswing in security values in 10 months, adding a billion dollars to the paper values of American securities.

Friday—For the third straight day, active and advancing prices.

There is still the closing day of the week to fulfill the fears of a lot of the journalistic prophets, who continue to moan and groan. But even in advance of the presidential election there was no three-day period reflecting a greater confidence in America's industrial and business outlook on the New York security market. Evidently Wall street, after political campaigns are over, gives little heed to what editors say. That makes it nearly unanimous outside the editorial offices. In a country where the government is said to be hell-bent upon establishing a replica of the British labor government's socialism, the people with money to buy stocks, shares in American industry and business, portray a strange attitude toward all of the gloomy reflections which so many American editors gave voice.

And that was the big news of the week, of a new year, of the return of millions of American workers to their everyday tasks after a brisk, gay holiday season. Wall Street said implicit information of Mr. Truman's recommendations had contributed a steady effect upon the market. The news from the security exchange added that the absence of a request for an excess profits tax, coupled with other stabilizing factors, made for a bullish security market.

Some of those factors are of common knowledge. One is that military expenditures will call for 15 billions, foreign aid an approximate four billions, the program of river valley improvement another large amount, while in the private construction field plant expansion and home building is certain to maintain a high peak of activity. It is difficult to figure any bad news out of any of that unless a course of prudence demands Uncle Sam stop spending for national security, drop the Marshall plan, abandon his program of conservation of natural resources, and toss overboard an unfinished job of home construction.

Another factor, one which does not appear in the news columns, gazed out from the year-end statements of financial institutions. We thumbed through a large number of them in the large cities, scattered throughout the country, and they are incredible. One New York bank, for example, at the conclusion of 1948, with a capital of 10 millions, had 100 millions stowed away in surplus, and another 31 millions in undivided profits. One Wilmington bank, with a capitalization of $4,037,500 had a surplus of $11,062,500 and undivided profits of $3,754,097.91. One Philadelphia financial concern, capital $6,700,000, had $13,300,000 in surplus, and undivided profits of $5,045,850.85. A second institution in the same city, capital three million, reported a seven million dollar surplus, over two millions in undivided profits, a million for bank improvements, and another million for contingencies. Still a third Philadelphia institution, capital 5½ millions, reported more than 10¼ million surplus and more than 2¼ millions of undivided profits. On and on it went from coast to coast, a reflection of the financial strength of the nation's institutions, and of America itself. Insurance companies just rounded out the biggest year in their history, more insurance in force than ever before, more reserves set up than ever before.

After his state of the union message President Truman followed up with the observation new records of production and of employment could be established in 1949.

Wishful thinking, some day, but wishful or sound, it was apparent that an old tag applied to the 80th congress might look better on the collars of some of the gentlemen of the working press. That congress, it was said, lagged sadly behind the people, but if it constituted a rear guard, its retreat was covered by the editors, fighting a desperate rear guard action for the same cause.

The president was not too busy to take time out to spank a columnist, Jay Franklin, reputedly the brains of his campaign "writers brain trust." Mr. Truman did even a more thorough job than his predecessor. A matter of slightly more than 12 years ago at a luncheon given in 1936 in Philadelphia by the publisher, Dave Stern for a group of about 40 newspapermen, we stood in awe in the presence of Jay Franklin, who although much younger then, even then had all the answers. Mr. Truman will do well to conserve his energies by ignoring the columnists, irritating and annoying as they sometimes are, but that is the way they live, and even if they go wrong now and then, they never should go hungry.

The week came to a close with the announcement of Secretary Marshall's not-unanticipated resignation. He has been a controversial figure, a convenient target for criticism but back on the farms and in the homes of the towns and cities we are quite sure that there remains a deep respect for his labors, and a common recognition of his high purposes in all that he has attempted. Mr. Marshall, courtly gentleman, kindly man, reluctant to judge harshly, slow to anger, did a great job in unflinched, unspectacular spirit. The world will find Dean Acheson a little bit tougher than Marshall, candid but courteous, an encyclopedic mind with a remarkable grasp of world affairs, a backlog of knowledge upon which to draw which should serve him and his country invaluable, and in work habits most thorough in his preparation for the tasks that confront him.

Marshall's retirement, of course, brings to the forefront the earlier reports of cabinet changes. It was speculation in this field that brought Jay Franklin to grief. In his own good time and way the president will reveal his plans and until they are disclosed the country will continue content to give Mr. Truman a reasonable opportunity to embark upon the great tasks to which he is committed.

Abroad it was a quiet week. Europe was uncommonly silent. An uneasiness back of the Iron Curtain was accentuated by evidence of a drive by the Kremlin against the church. Britain wound up 1948 with a cheerful report of economic progress. A part of the dread winter in Germany was behind, without untoward incident, with the Berlin airlift continuing to function. But the closing part of January and February usually bring western Europe its roughest winter weather, and much depends upon the skies. In the Near East Arab and Jew laid down their guns under the mandate delivered to them by the United Nations, the fresh outbreak of fighting coming to a close at week's end, with the disturbing report of the shooting down of two British planes. In the Dutch East Indies there was a lull, also in China, with the victorious communist armies apparently moving into position for drives upon Nanking and Peiping.

Here at home Old Man Winter rode herd from coast to coast with spur and whip. One of the most savage storms to sweep portions of the Great Plains blocked all transportation, marooned thousands of people, cut off scores and scores of towns from the outside world, but surprisingly inflicted little loss of human life. Livestock losses, still undetermined, may run high. Generally the United States has had a hard winter, one of the coldest and snowiest.

The new congress made short work of a long-delayed reform. A democratic house needed less than 30 minutes to get rid of the chains which an arrogant rules committee had used. As it starts in on its labors Roscoe Drummond, of the Christian Science Monitor, recalled that the 81st congress was the first genuine New Deal group since 1938, 10 years ago. The conclusion is that there will be happier relationships between the White House and Capitol Hill—a more congenial atmosphere than that in which the late Franklin D. Roosevelt lived from 1938 on to his death, and that which President Truman has breathed throughout the entire term of his presidency.

1949 Scout Plans Subject Of Leaders
Future Boy Scout activities were discussed Friday night at a meeting of the Boy Scout commissioners at the Y.M.C.A. Events discussed were the annual council meeting at Grand Island Jan. 16; the Scout Leaders round table at Camp Minis Kuya Jan. 19; Scout Week Feb. 6-12 and a training course to be conducted by Robert Perin, assistant director of the scouting service from New York City, at the Y.M.C.A. Jan. 29.

Thief Gets $45 At Filling Station
A thief Friday night took advantage of the momentary absence of the attendant and made off with about $45 in currency from the Phillips filling station at 1240 F street.
Bill Chastine, station attendant, said he went to the grease house, which is near the office, about 8:15 p. m. He returned to the office at 8:35 to find the cash register open and the money gone.

Murder Gets Around

BY ROBERT SIDNEY BOWEN

Chapter 31
Zara wouldn't answer. She would only smile; really turning it out when she switched her eyes from me to Bierman.
"Goodbye, sweet Maurice!" I mocked her. "But you slipped again. The tide wasn't going out, so it didn't take him down to the Narrows where he'd maybe be picked up but completely unrecognizable. The tide was coming in, and it took Cardeur upstream to Ninety-sixth street where Lieutenant Bierman's boys fished him out. When you found that out from me you were really in a dither. And when I dropped the name Herbert Varney, you really were stunned. How did I find out about Herbert Varney? That's what you wondered, didn't you? And as you had to say something in front of Barone, and Parkus, and me, too, you cooked up that one about Parrish being the villain. It stank, baby. Way up to high heaven. So you gave Barone and Parkus the rush because you wanted to work on me. But you couldn't throw any strikes past me, so you threw me out again. This time you really had to do a Garbo and think!"
I gave her a chance to say something. But it was still just the smile, a trifle stiffer. Anyway, the lady didn't want to say anything.
"You came up with the grand idea," I went on. "When murder gets really rolling, it's hard to stop. Gerry Barnes had to join Rene and Maurice. You got Barone to get me to come up to his place. You . . .
I paused and nodded my grudging praise.
"You were really good," I said. "I walked right into it with both eyes open, but you closed them very neatly, and pulled down the blackout curtain. It was very neat. I guess you really must have been a big help in the Underground. TNT in a small package. The only thing that went wrong was that I wouldn't die and go away. I either tell, or you pushed me out of that car on the Seventy-second street pier, before the wire had been twisted enough. Anyway, here I am. And there you are . . . fresh back from the bank. How's it listen for sound, Goldilocks?"
She was wonderful. My God, the dough she could have made playing life on the safe side of the street. She fairly beamed at me, and clapped her hands with enthusiasm.
"Wonderful, superb!" she cried. "Do you not agree, Lieutenant Bierman? He should write the book. But no! There is but the one very bad mistake!"
"You name it, sister," I challenged.
"But certainly." She bobbed her head, and continued to beam. "That, also, I told you in this very room. Maurice was mad with jealousy and came here to punish me. He was a fool. The pepper he throw in my eyes, too. But I know that it is Maurice, even though I cannot see him. I know, you hear? And like I tell you, the lady in the next apartment, she stay with me all the night. So you make the great big mistake about Zara, no?"
"No," I grinned at her. "It wasn't Maurice."
"It was!" she screamed. "I swear it. A woman, she can tell. It was my Maurice!"
To prove it she started to cry, and then stopped when I just stood there grinning down at her, and shaking my head.
"It was Maurice!" she managed doggedly.
"Goldilocks!" I told her gravely. "You sank yourself when you pulled that gag about Maurice coming here and beating you up. You beat yourself up, baby. You wanted the others to think that Cardeur was alive, until he had floated away forever. A few days, or a week, would be swell. You would be in the clear. But the tide took him the wrong way. He was found too soon!"
I let her have that with all stops out. And then I let her have the rest.
"It was at eleven-thirty that you say Cardeur was here beating you up. But Lieutenant Bierman happens to know that he died at nine o'clock! So now what?"

She looked at me, then at Bierman, and then back at me again. "That could not be so," she said in a hollow voice. "It is also not so that I try to kill you last night. I am here all the time, in this place."

"Look, Goldie, give it up," I said wearily. "There's a bit about last night I haven't mentioned yet. When I didn't die I got very sore at Barone and you. I went back to his place, hoping you two were there. You weren't, but he was. We had a little argument, but I hit the hardest. He decided to save his hide, and talk. He talked for a long time, Zara. I'll tell you, though, that he was really stunned to hear about you. The poor fish didn't even suspect. You had actually sold him on Parrish. When you made him phone me, he didn't even question why. Deep, secret love, that was Barone. He would always jump through hoops for you, the dope. I had to tie him up good, and lock him in, so he wouldn't change his mind and run away. Lieutenant Bierman will be going up there pretty soon. Maybe he'll take you along, and you can see for yourself I'm not kidding!"

As emphasis for my words Gordon Parrish groaned and buried his face in his hands. Goldilocks didn't even suspect. You had actually sold him on Parrish. When you made him phone me, he didn't even question why. Deep, secret love, that was Barone. He would always jump through hoops for you, the dope. I had to tie him up good, and lock him in, so he wouldn't change his mind and run away. Lieutenant Bierman will be going up there pretty soon. Maybe he'll take you along, and you can see for yourself I'm not kidding!"

Train Change Meet Slated For Hastings

Rail Official To Confer With Group

HASTINGS, Neb.—(AP)—The Hastings chamber of commerce has been advised that Julius Alms of Omaha, Burlington general passenger agent, will confer here at some future date with businessmen who are protesting a revision in the railroad's schedules.

Hastings businessmen had joined with the transportation committee of the chamber of commerce in dispatching a letter to Alms, asking that the railroad reestablish trains Nos. 5 and 22 on the schedule which existed prior to Jan. 2. The committee asked that the railroad continue the service until a star route could be established to replace the mail service supplied by the trains.

Cites Service Improvement.

Alms wrote that he was "terribly sorry" to learn of dissatisfaction over the changes but said the changes are providing overall improvement in service.

Meanwhile, chambers of commerce in 13 towns were sent letters by Cletus Nelson, secretary of the South Platte United Chamber of Commerce, asking them to contact their congressmen about the failure to establish a star route in lieu of the trains.

May Meet Next Week.

In Omaha, Alms said he had asked the Hastings representatives to suggest a date for the meeting and said it probably will be held next week.

Alms said the schedule changes were made to give better overall service along the Omaha-Lincoln-McCook line. He pointed out that in the matter of first class mail and newspapers, which are now being handled by bus, the area is getting the same service as it had before the schedule changes.

Alms said the Hastings protest grows more from the postoffice department's failure to establish star route service than from the railroad schedule changes.

INFLUENCE

Men live their lives in countless ways. Not merely drawing breath. As wanderers through nights and days. To what is known as death.

With all whom they may chance to meet. To take from, or to give. Either in victory or defeat. Forevermore they live.

No measure mortals can devise. A single life to trace. Or learn what in the future lies. When two come face to face.

All flesh is fashioned to decay. But influence lives on. And one in countless lives may lay. Long after he has gone. (Copyright, 1949, Edgar A. Guest)

KLINE WANTS OMAHA IN STATE TEACHERS' PLAN

Barton Kline of Beatrice said today he is convinced it is necessary to include Omaha in the State Teachers Retirement plan.

The Nebraska Education association publication quoted Kline: "There has been some misunderstanding about the matter of Omaha teachers participating in the state retirement system."

Omaha has its own plan. "After getting the entire picture of the Omaha plan, I am convinced that it is not only fair, but it is necessary for us to have Nebraska's metropolitan city, which represents 20 per cent of the population of the state, directly interested in the state retirement law if we hope to improve it," Kline said.

He added "It is only fair that since Omaha contributes taxes for a fifth of the population of the state it should be included in that part of any state plan which is paid for out of the general tax fund."

"As long as it doesn't interfere with outstate teachers' rights, Omaha should be welcomed into the state plan."

State pensions are paid for through both teacher and state contributions.

Other committee heads of the association as selected by the state executive committee are: R. C. Anderson, Madison, structure and support.

Edna M. Speltz, Scottsbluff, public relations. Annette S. Hawley, Omaha, professional relations. Dwight Teel, Grand Island, improvement of instruction.

Week-End Activity

THE AFTER-HOLIDAY calm has settled down on Lincoln society for a few days—the calm before the storm, perhaps, as the coming days hold considerable interesting activity—

HOWEVER THE CURRENT week-end, while not hectic, is not without its bright moments—

Down from Omaha is Mrs. Robert J. Ferguson (Nancy Gish), who was a luncheon hostess today at the University club when she entertained in courtesy to Miss Patricia Jones, also of Omaha, and a soon-to-be bride. Luncheon places were arranged for twelve, and following the luncheon the group remained at the club for an afternoon of bridge.

Miss Jones, with her mother, Mrs. Raymond B. Jones of Pilger, and her sister, Miss Jayne Jones, will leave soon for Japan where they will join Major Jones. In February Miss Patricia Jones will marry Lieut. Gordon J. Duquemin, a graduate of West Point military academy, class of 1947, at a ceremony to be solemnized in Japan.

ON SUNDAY Mrs. George Englehart will celebrate her ninetieth birthday anniversary, and in honor of the event, her niece, Mrs. Charles Patterson and Dr. Patterson, will preside at a family dinner at Hotel Cornhusker. The guest list will include Mrs. Englehart's nephews and their families—Mr. and Mrs. George G. Swingle, Mr. and Mrs. Charles W. Swingle, their daughters, Kathryn and Suzanne, and their son, Charles; Mr. and Mrs. Calvin L. Swingle, and Miss Marilyn Patterson, daughter of Dr. and Mrs. Patterson.

WORD HAS BEEN RECEIVED from Wilmington, Del., that Dr. and Mrs. Frank P. Stone, and their son, Jimmy David, are now settled in their new apartment in Wilmington where the Stones recently arrived. Dr. Stone is fulfilling an appointment for a year's work with the Alfred I. DuPont Institute of the Nemours Foundation in children's orthopedic surgery and for research.

Before leaving Lincoln Dr. and Mrs. Stone were honored at a surprise dinner for which members of the staff of the orthopedic clinic were hosts and hostesses.

Mrs. Stone is the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. L. L. Karnes.

LAST SUNDAY Mr. and Mrs. Frank B. Adams terminated their holiday visit in Pasadena, Cal., and all unsuspecting began their journey home. They arrived in Lincoln Friday evening after spending five days marooned at Green River, Wyo., along with two thousand other passengers from six trains that also were stalled in the same vicinity. The first shortage was light—but candles were rustled from hither and yon, so that matter was under control. Then the heat diminished—and eventually the food gave out, and then the water. But bread, milk and water were hauled thirty-five miles through the snow-drifts, and apparently no one died of starvation.

According to Mr. and Mrs. Adams the Penn State football team, and a hockey team from the east, kept all passengers entertained with skits, singing, recitations and a variety of other features.

Chautauqua Group Meets

Links, Rockets Victors

Red & Black Tops Fairbury 70-24; Hall Leads Links

By BOB BERSKSHIRE.

LINCOLN high justified its high ranking in state prep cage circles by romping to a 70-24 victory over Fairbury, Friday night at Whittier junior high.

After the first two minutes the men from Southern Nebraska failed to offer the Red and Black quintet the slightest bit of opposition.

TEN SCORE.

Ten Lincoln men contributed to the 70 point total. Only two Links failed to register in the scoring column.

Centers Phil Hall and Bob Howey led Red and White attack, scoring 13 and 12 points respectively. They were followed by Chick Battey who netted 10 points and high scoring forward Gus Lescock who registered nine points.

Top man for Fairbury was Dale Walker with 10 points. One-half of the Jeffs 24 points were scored by free throws.

Fairbury scored first on a free throw by Dick Anderson. A basket and free throw by wily Chick Battey gave the Links a 3-1 lead. Fairbury's Dale Walker tied up the score with tip in shot.

LINKS HOT.

A basket by Joe Gord, free throw by Lescock and free throw by Jeff Anderson and the score read 6-4. Then the men from Lincoln really turned on the heat. The Red and White hit shots register 19 more points before the Fairbury five was able to score again.

After a free throw by Jeff Dick Ford, midway in the second period, Lincoln led 25-5.

Coach Lyle Weiland substituted freely with first and second stringers each playing about half of the game. The Lincoln team had little trouble penetrating the Fairbury defense. Most of the Lincoln baskets were scored on set ups and tip shots.

The win was the sixth straight for the Capital City team. It was Fairbury's second loss of the season.

Lincoln led 19-4 at the quarter, 36-11 at the half and 52-15 at the end of the third period.

If they can not use him, Bevens will be returned to the Yankees, probably will be sent to the minors.

NEW YORK (AP)—Pitcher Floyd (Bill) Bevens, loser of a one-hitter in the 1947 world series, was sold conditionally Friday to the Chicago White Sox by the New York Yankees. It is the Sox think Bevens has recovered sufficiently from his shoulder trouble, they will keep him. If they can not use him, Bevens will be returned to the Yankees, probably will be sent to the minors.

Northeast Blasts Norfolk By 48-38 As Fredstrom Stars

By GEORGE MILLER

(Star Sports Staff Member)

ONE-MAN whirlwind gave Northeast plenty of anxious moments Friday night, but the Rockets finally were able to overpower Glenn Blakeman and his Norfolk teammates by a 48-38 count at the Northeast court.

In advancing a strong claim for recognition among the state's prep basketball leaders, the Rockets had to offset an 18-point blast by the will-o-the-wisp Blakeman. The Norfolk guard was especially deadly from the free-throw line, sinking 10 of 13 charity tries.

But Northeast had the answer in Center Paul Fredstrom. The 6-3½ sophomore, who picks up court proficiency with every game, outscored Blakeman by one point, finishing his duties for the evening with 19 markers.

HEIGHT ADVANTAGE.

The Rockets had a height advantage from the start, with John Niederhaus and Fredstrom working the boards. When Norfolk Center Jim Edwards left on fouls one minute after the second half began, the Northeast task became even simpler.

Simpler, except for Blakeman. Along with his scoring contribution, the speedy Panther ace kept Northeast ball handlers edgy with ball stealing tactics. Add to this his quarterbacking of the Norfolk offensive maneuvers and you have a mighty valuable performer.

Fredstrom's supporting cast in his individual scoring battle with Blakeman was much superior. Forward Ron Butler hit from far out when points preserved a slim Northeast lead. He collected 11 tallies through the game.

FINISHING TOUCH.

Niederhaus put the finishing touches on the Rocket lead with a trio of fielders in the fourth quarter. He nailed four free tosses in the first half to finish with 10 points.

Not until the last period could the Rockets shake the persistent Panthers. The Northeast club went into the final stanza riding a slim 30-28 lead.

The fourth-quarter pressure began to tell on the visitors. They kept within one point for the first minute as Blakeman's free throw and Waterbury's first field goal offset a fielder and a free throw by Fredstrom.

Jack Woods entered the act with his first shot of the night, a set shot from the side. Niederhaus boosted the Rocket lead to 36-28 when he nailed one point and Waterbury two more to tie the Norfolk total.

Norfolk took a 4-1 lead in the first two minutes of the game. Two free tosses by Niederhaus and one by Fredstrom tied the score at 10-10. Niederhaus brought his club up to a 7-7 tie in the first three quarters before Gable Peck broke through the middle to put Northeast ahead to stay.

After Coach Dawdy Hawkins' team had a 10-9 advantage. A last-second long shot by Butler gave the Rockets a 12-10 margin at intermission.

Blakeman tried but his help failed. The Rocket guard shot a 3-10 in the first 10 minutes of the game. He missed 10 of 13 Norfolk points in the first two quarters but could not keep pace when other Rockets took over.

HERE is a pleasant little game that will give you a message every day. It is a numerical puzzle designed to spell out your fortune. Count the letters in your first name. If the number of letters is 6 or more, subtract 4. If the number is less than 6, add 3. The result is your key number. Start at the upper left-hand corner of the rectangle and check every one of your key numbers, left to right. Then read the message the letters under the checked figures give you.
